

MANY DEAD.

Boiler in the Detroit Journal Building Explodes.

Flames Followed Explosion and Many Terrible Scenes Were Enacted.

Most of the Victims Are Girls Who Were Employed in the Book Bindery—People Passing on the Street Injured—About Thirty Dead.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 7.—At about 9 o'clock Wednesday morning the boiler in the Journal building, corner of Larned and Shelby streets, exploded with terrific force. A portion of the building about forty feet wide immediately collapsed, burying scores of people in the ruins. Four dead and several injured have already been taken out. A great many girls and women were employed in the building.

There were probably a hundred or more persons in the wrecked portion. Shortly after 9 o'clock the ruins broke out in flames and the great clouds of stifling smoke seriously impeded the firemen in their work of rescue. It is positively known that at the time of the collapse three stereotypers engaged on the fifth floor went down in the wreck. In the third story was the Habbins electrotyping foundry, in which were some half dozen men.

In the top story was the Journal's stereotyping department, where four or five men were busy. As near as can be learned there were from twenty-five to thirty at work in the building, exclusive of those who may have been injured while passing on the street.

The portion of the building directly above the boiler, on the first floor, was occupied by the Journal's mailing department. About five men and boys were there at work. In the second story was George Hillier's book bindery. In this place a couple of men and a score of girls were employed.

All of these people, men, boys and girls, were precipitated into the horrible chaos of ruins and escaping steam. The fire department was summoned at once, and with the aid of many persons who were attracted to the spot at once began the work of rescuing the poor victims.

The large building is cut cleanly in two from front to rear by a gap forty feet wide, at the bottom of which is an almost solid pile of timbers, brick and debris, into which the first hour or two's work of search for bodies made but little progress. The John Davis Co., dealers in grocers' sundries, occupied the ground floor and basement of one end of the building. The firm's list of employees is not large, but it is doubtful whether all escaped. The gap in the building extends through about half of the Davis establishment.

At 10:30 the dead body of a young girl was taken out. Her name is as yet unknown.

A body supposed to be that of Wm. Dunlap was dragged out at about the same time. Dunlap ran a small machine shop in the building, the business being repairing of type setting machines.

As yet the cause of the explosion is a mystery. Thomas Thompson, engineer, came out of the wreck painfully injured. His clothes were all torn off, and blood was running from a score of cuts. He said he knew no reason for the explosion, and was too excited to talk coherently. The work of delving into the ruins progresses slowly. It is believed the number of dead will reach thirty.

It is now estimated that the number of dead in the Journal building ruins will foot up about forty. The rescuers are working with might and main, and up to 4:30 o'clock Thursday morning sixteen bodies have been taken from the debris.

THE SENATE.

Four More Republican Senators to Be Added to That Body.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—The success of the republicans' legislative tickets in four states—Maryland, New York, New Jersey and Ohio—will add four republican senators to the republican column to succeed Gibson, Hill, Smith and Brice on March 4, 1897. Besides these four democrats who go out, the terms of Palmer (Ill.), Vilas (Wis.), Voorhees (Ind.), democrats, and Kyle (S. D.), and Peffer (Kan.), populists, also expire with the close of this congress. Two of these and possibly five will have republican successors. If President Cleveland's successor is a republican he will have a senate of at least ten and possibly twelve republican majority to favor his nominations.

The effect of the elections Tuesday on the senate will not be apparent until after Utah is admitted as a state.

That body at present contains 42 straight republicans, 4 populists, 39 democrats and one vacancy, Delaware. When Dupont, Del., is seated, republicans will master 43 votes. With Utah's republicans the party will have 44 votes, or just one-half of the senate. On a party the republicans would be at a disadvantage against the combination of all other forces, for Vice President Stevenson's vote would decide against them. The republicans, with the aid of Utah, may be able to organize the senate, for they rely to some extent on securing the votes of Jones and Stewart, silver republicans, and may get Peffer, populist.

Eugene Field's Obsequies. CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—The obsequies over the body of Eugene Field were held at the Fourth Presbyterian church Wednesday afternoon. The service was filled with hundreds of those who had known the dead poet personally or who had known him by his works. Rev. Dr. Thomas C. Hall, the pastor, read the Scriptures. Rev. Dr. Dunsmuir delivered a unique eulogy in verse, and Rev. Dr. F. M. Bristol, another friend of the poet, delivered a tender address.

MADE A DUCHESS.

The wedding of the Duke of Marlborough to Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, of New York. NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The wedding of Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt and the duke of Marlborough took place Wednesday in St. Thomas' Church at 12 o'clock. The church was thronged with representatives of New York's smartest society, and was decorated gorgeously, the floral display being, without doubt, the most lavish that New York has ever known.

The full choir of the church was in the choir alcove. George William Warren, the organist of the church, assisted by a harpist, had charge of the music.

DUKE OF MARLBOROUGH.

At 10:15 o'clock the concert began and continued until 11:15. The full New York Symphony orchestra was stationed in the gallery at the north-east corner of the church. Under the direction of Walter Damrosch they filled the three-quarters of an hour before the arrival of the bridal party with fine musical selections.

At 12 o'clock the officiating clergy, attired in their clerical robes, entered the vestry-room. Bishop Littlejohn, who officiated, followed by Bishop Potter and Rev. John Wesley Brown, rector of the church, took their stations at the chancel and waited the arrival of the bride and bridegroom.

DUCHESS OF MARLBOROUGH.

Mrs. Vanderbilt was escorted up the center aisle to the front pew on the north side, which she occupied with her other children. The bridal party formed in the southern vestibule. Mr. Warren then began the wedding march from "Lohengrin."

When the marriage ceremony was over the duke and his bride went to the vestry room and signed the marriage register. At the same time each of the bridesmaids took a basket of nosegays and marched up the aisle, distributing them among the guests. The duke and his bride entered the church and the bridal party marched down the aisle. The party immediately entered carriages and drove to Mrs. Vanderbilt's house, where the reception and breakfast followed.

At 3 o'clock the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough left for Oakdale, L. I., where, at Mr. Vanderbilt's country place, "Idle Hour," they will spend their honeymoon.
